Proximex Surveillint Version 6.0 Recognized as Finalist in IFSEC 2012 International Security Industry Awards

San Jose, Calif. (Business Wire) – April 24, 2012 – Proximex™, the leader in event and information management for both physical and logical security markets, announced today that its Surveillint™ (currently in release 6.0) solution was acknowledged as an Integrated Security Product of the Year finalist in the IFSEC 2012 International Security Industry Awards. This is the third prestigious industry recognition that Surveillint 6.0 has received in less than a month's time. At IFSEC, Proximex will launch Surveillint 6.0 for EMEA so the general public can view the product's latest features and functionality at booth #5/F50.

“It's wonderful news that Surveillint 6.0 has been recognized as a finalist by the IFSEC International Security Industry Awards committee,” stated Charlie Sherlock, Vice President of EMEA for Proximex. “Our teams have worked especially hard to provide organizations with ways to improve overall security communication which results in better incident response times, especially when dealing with outside agencies.”

Surveillint brings together disparate security systems into one centralized command and control center to give organizations more visibility into their security environments. It has been selected and proven in more than 50 projects worldwide and bi-directionally integrates more than 160 security platforms from its global network of manufacturer partners. Around the world, Surveillint has delivered impressive results in by helping organizations save significant amounts of time and money. It has helped customers reduce overall reporting time by up to 60 percent, alarm volume by up to 40 percent, individual response times by up to 90 percent/event and phone call ASA by up to 450 percent.

Widely regarded as one of the security sector's premier events in the annual calendar, the IFSEC International Security Industry Awards stand as both a celebration and an acknowledgement of excellence in terms of products and technological innovations influencing and shaping the security world. For 39 years, IFSEC International has been a major global annual security event that brings together the entire international security supply chain together under one roof.
